a map on the violence against women

“WE SAY NO” is a brochure that can help you out

What you are holding in your hands is a map to protect yourself from every type of male violence against women. Violence against women, also denominated gender violence, is recognised both as an issue of human rights violation and one of public health. It is nourished by a culture that is still based on stereotypes, the main one is the power of the male gender over the female one in the social, private (predetermined roles and control over the woman’s body) economic and political context. Gender violence is not an emergency issue, but it is a more widespread issue than many think of in the everyday life. Violence against women is a phenomenon that disregards skin-color, the religion, the social class belonging, education level and the age range. Most of these violent episodes occur at home.

Every year more than 100 women are killed in Italy and in Europe. It is the first cause of death and of permanent disability for women among 16 and 44 years old. For this reason, we talk about femicide, a term created in 1993 by the Mexican anthropologist Marcela Lagarde to indicate “the extreme form of gender violence against women, produced by the violation of her human rights both in the public and the private space, through different forms of misogynistic actions, ill-treatments, physical, psychological, sexual and educational violence. As well as violence in the workplace, economic, patrimonial, family, community, and institutional violence. The latter one leads to the impunity of the actions displayed both on a social and on a state level. This impunity put women in a risky and defenceless situation that can result in a woman’s murder or an attempt of a woman’s murder, or in other forms of violent deaths of women, children, and girls: suicides, accidents, deaths, or psychological and physical sufferance. Deaths and violence that could be avoidable anyways, and are caused by the insecurity, the lack of interest and the exclusion from the development and democracy spheres.” The territory of Imola is not an exception.

Why a map? Because women that suffer violence go through this condition in loneliness and often are not aware that they are independent persons with the full right to choose. The different territorial subjects, that have a diverse expertise connected with the different aspects of the phenomenon, are a multilevel presence that is able, if networked, to support in coping with the difficult path out of the violence and of renaissance from the suffered violence.

Going out from violence is possible! This is the fourth update of this map, since 2008, when the Equal Opportunities Commission of Imola edited the first edition. This map is, first, a tool available to women that suffer violence or to those who attempt to help them out.

At the opening you can find the definition of the different forms in which gender violence can be exercised to facilitate its recognition. It also contains some frequently asked questions that over the years women have asked to the services and associations involved. A map because it includes all the subjects to which it is possible to turn to ask for help. Each of these different subjects have been asked to tell what they do and with which kind of expertise they are able to provide support. It follows that the info you find herein is the direct expression of what they have said. A well done job that has rendered the map update possible and has renovated its utility. This job has been done by the technical round table of contrast to gender violence to which the local health authority, the local health authority for services to people, the office of Piano circondariale, the general practitioners, the paediatricians of free choice, the police, the Trama di Terre association that deals with the three levels of reception: support, listening and counselling, and reception in women's shelters as well as reception in urgent cases as per the Urban agreement of December 2015, renewed on March 4th 2020, for the implementation of activities of reception interventions, listening and reception of women that suffered violence and PerLeDonne association that, in the context of the same agreement, manages a listening, counselling and a support desk. The table meets up regularly and deals with the informative and educational actions to cope with the different issues such as the integration of data regarding gender violence in the territory; a problem that is hasn't found an adequate solution yet, with the aim of building up a more and more efficient network, combining all the specific expertise.

We are aware that there is much more to do, both in cultural terms as well as it concerns the allocations of adequate resources to support both the network and the subjects that take part in it with their daily commitment. The quality, the importance, and the urgency to ensure the financial soundness as well as the soundness over the time of the network and the actions that the territory can guarantee, benefits the entire local community.

Violence against women is a failure for all.

WHAT IS GENDER VIOLENCE?

It is “violence against women” every kind of violence based on gender that causes harm or physical, sexual, psychological suffering for women, including threats, coercion and the imposed deprivation of freedom.

As it is stated in art. 1 of the UN Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women, acknowledged today as a fundamental human right violation. In most of the cases gender violence is perpetrated by men against women: very often it is a combination of different forms of violence that occur in many relations and contexts. Furthermore, different forms of violence can be connected.

Recognizing these forms of violence is crucial: here are some of the most typical expressions.

PHYSICAL VIOLENCE: attacks that lead to a use of force: shoving, hair pulling, slapping, punching, hitting with objects, choking, burning, harming with the use of guns, etc. The severity of the physical injuries can differ from bruises, abrasions, bones, and teeth broken to permanent injuries that can amount to death.

PSYCHOLOGICAL VIOLENCE: actions that harm the woman’s identity and self-esteem, her wellbeing, especially if they are persistent: jokes aimed at humiliating and mortifying; threats, in particular violent threats; control of the interactions and isolation; insults and denigrations.

ECONOMIC VIOLENCE: Actions that tend to result in economic dependency and/or to unwanted economic obligations: control over her salary or over the family income that impede any kind of independent decisions; obligation to quit a job or obstruction to find one; coercion to sign documents or take an economic initiative.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: Every type of physical, psychological, and sexual violence that occurs among two persons that have or had a private relationship. It both concerns persons that have either family relationships or romantic relationships within a family unit more or less enlarge.

SEXUAL VIOLENCE: Every type of sexual action that is imposed to the woman: sexual assault, rape, incest, coercion to sexual behaviours that are humiliating and/or painful, obligation to take part in the making of pornographic material.

SEXUAL HARRASSAMENT: Actions that occur in public and/or actions that include jobs that are seen as humiliating or demeaning or undesirable: jokes that have a sexual background, exhibitionism, obscene calls and/or messages, persistent or threatening offers of undesired sexual relations, fondles that have a sexual background.

VIOLENCE ASSOCIATED TO HONOUR: Coercion to adopt behaviours considered as appropriate by law and/or cultural, religious, social traditions that impede the woman's freedom of choose.

GENDER DISCRIMINATION IN THE WORKPLACE: Being subjected to deliberated and systematic abuse, threats and/or humiliations, discriminations and/or sexual harassment connected to their identity as a woman, from colleagues or supervisors within the workplace.

STALKING: It literally means “chasing and hunting”. And it consists of repeated and persistent attempts to control a person by imposing undesired communication or contact that evoke in her a feeling of fear via telephone, letters, surveillance, threats, assaults or continuous intrusions in the private school or work life.

FORCED MARRIAGE: It occurs when one or both spouse’s consent to the marriage is not free but imposed by the country of origin cultural or social background. For some women, refusing a forced marriage entails severe consequences such as: physical, psychological violence or isolation from the family or the background community.

GENITALE MUTILATIONS: They differ from incision or the removal, both can be partial or complete. Children, girls, and women that are subjected to these mutilations risk irreversible damage to their health as well as serious psychological consequences. This traditional practice is carried out to have a complete control over the women’s body.

IF YOU ARE WONDERING

“HOW CAN YOU HELP ME OUT?”

The services and the organisations which references you can find in the following pages, welcome you and listen to your story, to your questions and your doubts to support you in the decision to go out from a violent situation. They can activate with you the necessary interventions. Here you will find other women you can talk to and share together, without ever taking an action that opposes your will, and implement a support project.

“SHOULD I REPORT MY PERPETRATOR?”

Using violence in the relations is a crime that compromises your life. It also undermines the wellbeing and the healthy future growth of your offspring. Contact these services or an anti-violence centre means first being welcome and accompanied in a supporting and auto determination path. It is possible to report even in the case of a single violent episode (personal harm, threat, or harassment), or within three months of when it happened.

“IF I DECIDE TO A REPORT THE VIOLENCE CAN SOMEONE TAKE MY CHIDREN AWAY FROM ME?”

NO. Asking for help is the very first step to protect your offspring and yourself. The operators, that you will meet, will assist you in choosing the best solution for you and your offspring.

“CAN I ASK FOR HELP EVEN IF I DO NOT HAVE CHILDREN?”

FOR SURE. To live a free of violence relationship is a right, regardless of the presence of children.

“IF HE ABUSES ME CAN IT BE MY FAULT?”

Most abusive situations, unfortunately, occur in the family and very often they are carried out just by people we know husbands, boyfriends, fathers, relatives, or friends. Even if women are likely to blame themselves of the violence that occur within the couple, no behaviour can justify a suffered violence. When we talk about violence, no one over states. What matters is your perception and what you feel. If he controls you, beats you up, humiliates you or devaluates you for any reason, it is not your responsibility.

“I AM ASHAMED OF TALKING TO SOMEONE, IF I TURN TO THESE SERVICES AND TO THE ANTI-VIOLENCE CENTRE MY PRIVACY WILL BE ENSURED?”

Shame is a natural emotion, painful to tolerate, and can lead you to shut up and hide. The services or the centres will guarantee you, within the respect of your emotions and in full confidentiality, psychological and legal counselling, work trainings and support groups.

“HE PROMISED ME HE WILL “CHANGE”, SHOULD I BELIEVE HIM?”

The violent behaviour tends to reoccur over the time shaping a real “circle of violence”; for this reason, to have a conscious change, adequate support and assistance are necessary.

“DOES HE SUBJECTS ME TO VIOLENCE BECAUSE IN HIS CULTURE THE HUSBANDS BEAT THEIR WIVES UP?”

Violence against women exists in every cultural, religious, social and economic context. Violence is not a specific cultural trait of a single culture, but it is conducted by men of every country. There is no justification for any sort of violence against women. To argue that those who perpetrate violence are foreigners or suffer from a psychological issue is false: it demeans the severity of the act and the responsibility of the perpetrator.

“IF I AGREE TO BE HOSTED IN A SECRET PLACE, HOW CAN I GO TO WORK? WILL I RISK LOSING MY JOB?”

The Italian law recognised to working women (employed both in the public and the private sector, except for the domestic sector), victims of gender violence and included in protection paths, three months paid leave. (D. Leg.vo nr.80 art.24 of 15/6/2015).

“As managers and as women our double commitment is to promote an equal opportunities culture. Only by changing the mindset we can change the way we act, and it is for this reason that every action that we promote is the product of a common thought and it is part of a path made of daily big and small steps. As the protected listening room we inaugurated in the Police headquarters of Imola and realized with the contribution of Lions Club Imola Host and Val Santerno besides Municipality of Imola, a safe environment that ensures the respect and the confidentiality of those who report a violent situation or an ill-treatment and the agreement for the contrast to harassment and violence in the workplace that allows us to spread widely in our territory the culture of equal opportunities. In this path none must be alone. We are here.”

Beatrice Poli Mayor Equal Opportunities delegate Nuovo Circondario Imolese and the Equal Opportunities Council Members of the ten Municipalities of Nuovo Circondario Imolese.

Using violence in a relation is a crime.

• 118 AND FIRST AID

(Imola, New Hospital of Santa Maria della Scaletta via Montericco 4 direct access h24 - main entrance at via Bel Poggio)

The first aid is an hospital service devoted to emergency health issues to which one can have access directly or by calling the emergency number 118. Within a special path (the pink path) the sanitary operators host the victim guaranteeing a special focus on the psychological and physical conditions and on the protection of the confidentiality to provide an adequate treatment and health support. The first aid doctor, following a complex examination, including all the required medical reports, decides to discharge the victim or to submit a hospitalization request.

The violence crime report, as per the Italian law, is formally notified by the first aid doctor if the injuries have a prognosis that exceeds the twenty days. In the case of discomfort or judgemental situation that characterises her return to home or in the case of absence of a family or friendship network that can offer an alternative house, even in case of emergency, the sanitary operators can engage, with the woman's consent, the social services network.

• PUNTO UNICO AZIENDALE (P.U.A.)

(Imola, Ospedale Nuovo Santa Maria della Scaletta via Montericco 4 - telephone service tel.0542 662146 from Monday to Friday 9/13 - afternoons only by appointment).

You can turn to this service directly or upon the request of the hospital staff. The P.U.A operator offers listening skills and first support and based on the situation, it provides the necessary information and/or the proposal of a support programme.

* TRAMA DI TERRE ONLUS - APS

The organization “Trama di Terre” was born in Imola in 1997 thanks to the encounter of migrant and native women. Among its goals there is the recognition, the promotion and the diffusion of the rights gained by women worldwide and the contrast to every kind of discrimination and violence that hinder the full enjoyment of these rights.

The anti-violence centre: (via Aldrovandi 31 - 2° floor). It opens from monday to friday 9/17 - mobile: 393 5596688 fax 0542 067566 antiviolenza@tramaditerre.org. A phone call is enough to schedule an appointment for the first meeting or you can show up directly at their office.

The anti-violence centre addresses Italian or foreign women that are victims of male violence. It's a safe and not judgemental space where one can find support to elaborate each own's way out from the violence by valuing the abilities of every and each woman. The centre supports women who want to escape violence through a path of auto determination and self-awareness. In this centre one can find many operators from different countries and lawyers with an expertise in international family law. All the job is carried out with the respect of the woman's will.

The anti-violence centre makes shelters with a secret address available for lonely women that need to escape or women with minors who want a way out from the violence they are facing. This opportunity is also available for young foreign women who are victims of freedom deprivation or are victims of a forced marriage.

The fundamental criteria for accessing these women shelters are the woman's will and her explicit request to elaborate an independency path that will lead her out from the violent situation. The reception of the victim occurs based on the qualified social services request, the woman's request or in case of an emergency based on the territorial competent social services.

Trama di terre works supporting women with the goal of offering a safe and protected environment, where they can have a daily life without violence, acquiring self-esteem, stability and awareness of themselves and their own rights.

It works in connection with the different services of the territory, to provide women with the necessary tools to rebuild a path of autonomy and independency.

With these goals in mind the organisation makes the following projects available:

Intercultural women centre: listening point and orientation for the different services for both native and migrant women. Open from monday to friday 9/12 and 14/16 - tel. 0542 28912 mobile: 334 7311570) centrointerculturaledelledonne@tramaditerre.org
info@tramaditerre.org

Job Training Desk: helps women to build an individual professional project that values their abilities and expectations by analysing the real possibilities of job placement in the territory (mobile: 333 3251875 sportellolavoro@tramaditerre.org)

Projects of secondary reception: for women that have ended their independency path of escaping and protection in the women shelters but do not have an economic independency mobile: 393 5596688 - antiviolenza@tramaditerre.org)

Project of housing reception: for migrant women who are facing temporary difficulties with or without offspring (mobile: 393 5596688 - accoglienza@tramaditerre.org)

Project of reception for women asylum seekers or recognised as refugees (mobile: 351 2166011 - rifugiate@tramaditerre.org)

* PERLEDONNE VOLUNTEER ASSOCIATION

It's a volunteer association born to connect gender policies with the action that contrast women violence. The association manages an anti-violence centre that deals with:

Raising awareness on the topics concerning equal opportunities and women's rights thanks to the organization of public events, trainings, leading of groups and workshops.

Actions and interventions to help women that are or were subjected to psychological, physical, sexual, economic, religious violence, stalking, or mobbing as well as violence against minors.

Reception: it offers free reception guaranteeing privacy and anonymity, orientation, and support to a path out of the violent situation through meetings and individual paths. Furthermore, it offers free legal counselling, information and orientation regarding the network services present in the territory when psychological support is needed, and work orientation as well as childcare support towards parenting.
